

NAYA KANGA PEAK CLIMBING

Naya Kanga also recognized as Ganja-la Chuli is the most reachable high peak over the South of alpine Langtang valley. The top of the peak can be seen from above Kyangjin Gomba. Where we spend two nights for the acclimatization. We also hike to Tsergo Ri (4984m) in one day round trip from Kyangjin Gomba before we trek to Naya Kanga base camp. Naya Kanga Peak Climbing is easy but technically demanding for mountaineering purpose, however, it does not need any kind of previous experience. Close to the Tibetan border and the west of the Ganja La pass (5,121meter) Naya Kanga peak stands at 5,846m/19175ft, covered with snow and ice.

Without a doubt, the most important reward for mountaineering in Nepal is the spectacular views of high mountains. There are plenty of Peaks over 5,000 meters can be seen in this expeditions. Specifically, Pemthang Ri, Langtang II, Langtang Lirung, Langshisa Ri, Ganesh Himal, Pemthang Kapro Ri, Shisapangma and much more. The Langtang Valley and Naya Kanga Peak connect the north part of Kathmandu and the southern part of the Tibetan forest. In this two weeks trek and climb, we can explore beautiful valley of Langtang and also get an opportunity to be familiar with the local culture and custom practiced in the Langtang region of Nepal. Activity Levels:

For any trek at this level, fitness is most important and you may have to improve yours before departure. Most "C" grade treks are equivalent to extended walking in mountainous terrain at home, but usually at significantly higher altitudes; climate and remoteness can also play a part. Walking days are usually between 6 to 8 hours although there may be some longer days for pass-crossing or similar. Previous trekking experience is desirable but not essential if you are confident of your physical condition.
